YOUR BUSY SEASON CREATES YOUR SLOW SEASON.

The month you stop prospecting is the month that costs you.

APPOINTMENTS PEAK IN THE FIRST THREE MONTHS OF THE YEAR. MOST AGENTS JUST LET THEM FALL AFTER THAT.

One team kept calling through the busy season and grew appointments 62 percent.

THE DROP ISN'T THE MARKET. IT'S THE CALENDAR.

At Zillow Unlock 2026, Ryan Young of the Young Team: lead generation and appointments historically peak January through March, then decline the rest of the year as agents shift their attention to closing the deals they already have. His team kept following up through that shift and grew their own appointments set 62 percent year to date. That's his team's own reported result, not an industry average.

PROTECT THE FOLLOW-UP HOUR, ESPECIALLY THIS MONTH:

1 Block one hour of follow-up calls every weekday.
Keep it on the calendar in your busiest closing month, not just your slow one.

2 Put every live lead on a standing follow-up, not a one-time call.
The leads that go quiet in a busy season are the ones nobody called back.

3 Check your own numbers every quarter.
If your appointments always drop after March, the calendar is the problem, not the market.

THE TAKEAWAY

THE AGENTS WHOSE APPOINTMENTS DON'T DROP ARE THE ONES WHO NEVER STOPPED CALLING.

Keep the follow-up hour through your busiest month.
