

KEEPING IT REAL

AI WON'T REPLACE YOU. IT WILL EXPOSE YOU.

A video coach who trains agents says the second part is already happening.

VIDEO COACH KIM RITTBERG, A FORMER TV PRODUCER AND NETFLIX MEDIA EXECUTIVE, ON WHAT AI DOES TO AGENTS WHO SKIP THIS STEP.

"The one thing that AI cannot copy right now is you."

GENERIC CONTENT IS THE THING AI IS EXPOSING.

Kim Rittberg, on Keeping It Real: "In the world of content, social media content, video content, AI is going to expose everybody who is not making truly original content." Her point: if you're putting out AI content or brokerage content that anyone else with the same tools could post, it doesn't make a client trust you more, and it never did. The thing AI can't copy is you specifically, your years of experience, your niche, your personality. That has to be in the content, not just in your head.

WHAT KIM SAYS TO ACTUALLY DO:

1 Feed AI your own differentiators first.
Your market, your niche, your credentials, what makes you you, not just a prompt about real estate.

2 Redline every AI draft like a contract.
Cut anything that could have been written for Joe, Jane, or any other agent in your area.

3 Nail the first two seconds, every time.
Kim's own words: it's going to "either torpedo your content or make it amazing."

4 Get on video if you aren't already.
AI made generic content easy for everyone, which made showing up as yourself the actual differentiator.

THE TAKEAWAY

AI ISN'T COMING FOR YOUR JOB. IT'S COMING FOR YOUR SAMENESS.

The agents it exposes are the ones who never showed up as themselves in the first place.
