Megan Walters, top 1% nationwide with over a thousand career transactions, on what actually grows a real estate business. Not a script. Not a CRM sequence. Showing up.

SHE NEVER BOUGHT A LEAD. SHE NEVER COLD CALLED.

On the Keeping It Real Podcast, Megan Walters of the Walters Team at eXp in Columbia, Missouri, said it plainly: "If you're sitting at your desk or if you're sitting at your home, you're not doing your job. You need to go meet new people." Her business, top 1% nationwide with more than a thousand career transactions, was built without buying a single lead and without a cold-calling system. The two things she credits instead are unglamorous. She goes to events that have nothing to do with real estate, and she posts short-form video every day. Neither one is a database sequence you can set and forget.

GET OUT FROM BEHIND THE DESK THIS WEEK:

- 1 Put one hour on today's calendar for in-person contact.
Not email. Not your CRM. A door,
- 2 an open house, a room with people in it.
- 3 Join one group that has nothing to do with real estate.
Megan built her network at
- 4 non-industry events, where nobody is guarding their listings from you.
- 5 Post one short video today, from wherever you already are.
She posts daily. The camera is
- 6 already in your pocket.
- 7 Count this week's in-person conversations, not your database touches.
The number that
- 8 grows the business isn't the one your CRM logs automatically.

THE TAKEAWAY

THE CRM LOGS
ACTIVITY. ONLY
THE ROOM GROWS
THE BUSINESS.
