Up 19 percent in one year, according to NAR. Gross income didn't come close to keeping pace.

THE RAISE GOT EATEN BEFORE IT REACHED YOU.

NAR's 2026 Member Profile puts the typical agent's gross income from real estate at $59,200 in 2025, up from $58,100 the year before, on a median nine transaction sides. That's an extra $1,100. Median business expenses climbed from $8,010 to $9,530 in the same period, an extra $1,520. The cost of doing business grew faster than the business did. Most agents track their commission split. Almost nobody tracks the total of every fee stacked on top of it until the year is already over.

DO THIS MATH BEFORE YOUR NEXT RENEWAL, NOT AFTER:

- 1 Add up every fee beyond your split.
Desk fees, franchise fees, tech fees, transaction
- 2 fees, E&O. Put a real dollar figure next to each one.
- 3 Compare that total to what you actually kept last year
, not to the split percentage on
- 4 your agreement. The split tells you the commission.
It doesn't tell you the cost.
- 5 Run the same nine transactions through a flat-fee model.
If the fee total is fixed instead
- 6 of scaling with what you sell, do the math on what last year would have looked like.
- 7 Bring the number, not a feeling, to your next conversation about staying or leaving.
