

KEEPING IT REAL

LET THE BUSINESS COME TO YOU.

A top 1% producer says that's the worst advice he ever got.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast

KEEPING IT REAL
keepingitrealpod.com

“

JUSTIN HELMUS IS A TOP 1% PRODUCER IN TAMPA BAY AND AN NAR 30 UNDER 30. AN OLDER AGENT TOLD HIM TO SIT BACK AND WAIT FOR THE RELATIONSHIPS TO COME.

His answer: "If you don't personally believe in yourself, nobody else is going to."

03 / 05

HE DID THE OPPOSITE ON PURPOSE.

Helmus got his first high-end listings in his mid-20s, in the same small town he grew up in, by out-studying agents who had decades on him -- he says he made it his job to know every segment of his market, what sold for what, and why. "If you were sitting behind your desk in real estate in those times, you were losing money," he says of the mindset that built his early business.

WHAT JUSTIN DOES INSTEAD OF WAITING:

1 Go where your clients already are.
His luxury business runs on country clubs, coffee shops, restaurants, and bars instead of a desk, because he says luxury real estate is relationship-driven and that's where the relationships actually live.

2 Send a note nobody else sends.
His own words: "I am the biggest believer in handwritten notes." He still hand-delivers them to prospective buyers and other luxury agents on his biggest deals, calling it "bar none, the best use of your time."

3 Out-study your market, every single day.
He spends at least an hour a day on it, because in his words, "If I'm not doing that, my competition is."

THE TAKEAWAY

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Skip one social post today and hand-write one note instead, to a client or another agent. Then go stand somewhere your next client already is.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast