

KALE REALTY

39 OF 49 METROS FAVOR BUYERS.

Chicago isn't one of them. Here's how to use that in your next listing appointment.

“

HOMES HERE SELL
IN 47 DAYS AT 102% OF ASKING.

Your seller has no idea how rare that is right now.

THE NATIONAL BUYER DROUGHT IS THE STRONGEST LISTING PITCH YOU HAVE THIS MONTH.

Redfin's analysis, covered in Bloomberg's August 19, 2026 newsletter, found 39 of the 49 major US metro areas are now buyer's markets, with sellers outnumbering buyers nationally. Chicago isn't one of them: 0.72 months of supply, homes moving in an average of 47 days, and sale prices averaging 102.12% of asking (Houzeo, citing MRED MLS-IL data, July 2026). A seller who reads the national headlines assumes their market softened too. It didn't, and the contrast is the opening line.

HOW TO USE THE CONTRAST IN THE APPOINTMENT:

- 1 Open with the national number, not the local one.
"Buyers are vanishing almost
- 2 everywhere else in the country. Not here." Let the seller feel the exception before you name it.
- 3 Show the 0.72-months figure next to whatever they think their competition looks like.
- 4 Most sellers are pricing against a market that doesn't exist anymore, in either direction.
- 5 Price to the 102% reality, not to fear borrowed from national headlines.
A seller
- 6 spooked by the news will underprice a home that doesn't need it.

THE TAKEAWAY

YOUR SELLER READS THE SAME HEADLINES YOU DO.

Show them the Chicago number before they talk themselves into a discount nobody's asking for.
