KEEPING IT REAL

STOP TEXTING "JUST CHECKING IN."

Give the text a reason to get answered.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast

KEEPING IT REAL
keepingitrealpod.com

“

ONE IN FIVE OF YOUR PAST CLIENTS COULD BE SAVING MONEY RIGHT NOW AND HAS NO IDEA.

Redfin ran the numbers in March. Almost none of them have checked.

03 / 05

"JUST CHECKING IN" ASKS FOR THEIR TIME. IT GIVES NOTHING BACK.

Redfin's own report, published March 12, 2026: one in five U.S. homeowners with a mortgage (19.8%) could save money by refinancing to a lower rate, the highest share in over four years. Fewer than one in ten of them (9.1%) had actually refinanced, the lowest take-up rate since the start of 2020. Rates have climbed since that March number, so this isn't a promise of savings. It's a reason to text that isn't small talk.

WHAT TO SEND THIS MONTH INSTEAD OF "JUST CHECKING IN":

1 Pull your closed-client list from the last three to four years.
Anyone who bought when rates were higher than today's is worth a text.

2 Offer a check, not a promise.
"Want a lender to check, for free, if refinancing saves you money?" No number, no guarantee, just an offer.

3 Let the lender run the math, not you.
You're making the referral, not quoting a rate.

4 Set a reminder to follow up once, two weeks later.
Most people read it, mean to reply, and don't.

THE TAKEAWAY

GIVE THE TEXT A REASON, AND WATCH WHO ANSWERS.

That's the difference between checking in and actually being useful.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast