

KALE REALTY

YOUR BUYER JUST ASKED YOU TO CUT YOUR FEE.

Most agents answer wrong before they finish the sentence.

“

DON'T DEFEND THE NUMBER. DON'T FOLD EITHER.

There's a third move, and it's one question.

IT WAS NEVER ABOUT THE PERCENTAGE.

The commission conversation is about value perception, not price. Ask a buyer to define what they want you to do less of, and they're forced to look at the actual work instead of the number. Most can't name a single thing, because they never thought past "opens doors."

THE SWAP FOR THE COMMISSION-CUT ASK:

- 1 Don't defend the number, list your tasks, or fold out of fear of losing them.
All three are the trap.
- 2 Ask this instead.
"What part of what I do do you want me to do less of?"
- 3 Then stop talking.
Let the silence sit. Don't fill it for them.

THE TAKEAWAY

YOU DON'T DEFEND
THE NUMBER. YOU
ASK THEM TO DEFINE THE WORK.

Try the exact question on your next buyer consult.