VIRTUAL TOURS ARE NOT GENERATING BUSINESS FOR MOST AGENTS.

NAR's 2026 Member Profile: 81 percent of Realtors got zero 2025 business from them.

THE TOOL GOT FANCIER. THE RESULTS DIDN'T FOLLOW.

NAR's 2026 Member Profile asked its own members where their 2025 business actually came from. Eighty-one percent said virtual tours produced zero business all year. The format photographs well on a listing page. It is not the thing generating the next deal for most of the agents paying for it.

WHERE TO PUT THAT BUDGET INSTEAD:

1 Ask what the virtual tour actually costs per listing.

Most agents have never put that number next to the deals it produced.

2 Put that dollar amount into direct outreach to your past clients instead.

A call or a handwritten note still outperforms a 3D walkthrough nobody asked to see.

3 Keep the tour only for the one buyer who genuinely can't attend in person.

Use it as a convenience for that showing, not a marketing line item on every listing.

THE TAKEAWAY

A PRETTY TOUR DOESN'T REPLACE A PHONE CALL.

Spend the budget on the thing that actually brings the next client.
