AND IT ISN'T YOUR SKILL.

200 names, national turnover, does the math for you whether you like the answer or not.

IT WAS NEVER A SKILL PROBLEM.

Redfin's October 2025 report puts national home turnover at 2.8 percent, the lowest rate in at least 30 years. Run that rate against a 200-person database and you get roughly five to six transactions a year, no matter how sharp the agent is on the phone. Another course or certification doesn't change that number. A bigger list does.

GROW THE LIST BEFORE YOU BUY ANOTHER COURSE:

- 1 Ask every closed client for three names.
Not a review, three actual names of people they
- 2 know.
- 3 Add the people you dropped.
Past showings that went nowhere, old leads you stopped
- 4 calling. They're still in your market.
- 5 Set a quarterly add target.
A number, written down, not a vague "stay in touch more."
- 6 Stop paying for a fourth designation.
Spend that money and that month on the list instead.

THE TAKEAWAY

BEFORE YOUR NEXT
COURSE, COUNT
YOUR DATABASE.
THAT'S THE REAL CEILING.

At 2.8 percent turnover, 200 names caps out around five or six deals a year. Grow the list.
