

INSIDE THE INDUSTRY

THE FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER JUST TURNED FORTY.

That's a record. It changes what you should be saying to them.

YOUR BUYER
PRESENTATION WAS PROBABLY BUILT FOR A THIRTY-YEAR-OLD.

The buyer in front of you is forty. They're not nervous.
They're outbid.

MEDIAN FIRST-TIME BUYER AGE: 40.

NAR's 2025 Profile of Home Buyers and Sellers puts it at a record high, up from 30 in 2010.

HERE'S WHY THEY KEEP LOSING.

First-time buyers put down a median of 10 percent. Repeat buyers put down 23 percent, and 3 in 10 pay all cash.

THEY'RE NOT NERVOUS. THEY'RE OUTBID.

Most presentations explain the process. That solves a problem this buyer doesn't have.

LEAD WITH THE COMPETITION, NOT THE PROCESS.

Pull the last 10 sales in their price band. Show what each sold for, what the buyer put down, and whether it was cash.

21 PERCENT.

That's first-time buyers' share of the market right now, the smallest NAR has recorded since it started tracking in 1981.

BEFORE YOUR NEXT FIRST-TIME BUYER MEETING:

- 1 Pull the last 10 sales in their price band.
- 2 Show what each one sold for.
- 3 Show what the buyer put down, and whether it was cash.
- 4 Lead with that, not with how the process works.

THE TAKEAWAY

OPEN THE LAST
EMAIL YOU SENT A
FIRST-TIME BUYER. IF
IT LED WITH A
PROCESS
EXPLAINER, REBUILD
IT BEFORE YOUR NEXT SHOWING.

Forty-year-olds don't need the process explained. They need to know what they're up against.
