

KEEPING IT REAL

WAITING FOR RATES TO DROP COSTS MORE.

A top 1% mortgage producer's math on why buying now usually wins.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast

KEEPING IT REAL
keepingitrealpod.com

“

ANNA KARA IS A TOP 1% MORTGAGE PRODUCER IN LOS ANGELES. HERE'S WHAT SHE TELLS BUYERS WHO SAY THEY'RE WAITING FOR RATES TO DROP.

"If it's a 1% higher rate right now, that property, when the rates drop, you're going to pay $150,000 more on the purchase price."

03 / 05

IT WAS NEVER REALLY ABOUT THE RATE.

Anna Kara, on Keeping It Real: a house that draws 5 competing offers today can draw 20 or 30 once rates fall, because every buyer who was waiting shows up at the same time. She has watched it happen in Los Angeles with 30, 40, even 50 offers on a property, and she has personally worked one transaction that drew 61 offers. That surge in competition, not the rate itself, is what actually pushes the purchase price up.

WHAT ANNA SAYS TO ACTUALLY DO:

1 Run the monthly-payment math out loud, before the price math.

Her own line to a buyer spooked by a rate tick: it's often "only like $60 difference on your monthly payment," not the deal-breaker it feels like in the moment.

2 Show them the competition number, not just the rate number.

Five offers today versus 20, 30, or 61 once rates drop is the real cost of waiting, and it's a harder number to argue with than a rate quote.

3 Tell them the regret pattern.

She says she has never met a single buyer who regrets purchasing five, ten, or twenty years ago. The rate can be revisited later. The price locked in that day can't.

THE TAKEAWAY

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Next time a buyer says they're waiting for rates to drop, don't argue the rate. Show them what happened to the last house that had 5 offers when everyone else decided to wait too.

D.J. Paris
Keeping It Real Podcast

KEEPING IT REAL
keepingitrealpod.com