

INSIDE THE INDUSTRY

RATES JUST HIT A YEAR-LONG FIRST.

Not lower. Higher than a year ago. First time in 44 weeks.

THE BUYER WHO SAID "LET ME WAIT
A FEW MORE
DAYS" JUST LOST MONEY DOING IT.

The dip from two weeks ago is gone. Rates went the other way.

THE NUMBER THAT ENDS THE "RATES WILL COME BACK DOWN" STALL.

The 30-year fixed averaged 6.69 percent as of August 6, up from 6.66 percent the week before.

That's the highest level since the end of July 2025, and the first week in 44 weeks that rates have landed above where they were the same week a year earlier.

The rate dip everyone was banking on didn't hold.

THREE LINES FOR THE BUYER WHO'S BEEN SITTING ON THE FENCE:

1 "The dip you were waiting on already came and went."

Rates fell earlier this summer. That window is closed, not paused.

2 "This is the highest rate in over a year, not a blip."

Naming the specific number kills the vague "rates are bad right now" reflex and replaces it with something they can act on.

3 "Every week you wait is a week at this rate, not a lower one."

Frame the cost of waiting in their actual monthly payment, not a percentage.

THE TAKEAWAY

THE AGENT WHO SENDS THE NUMBER TODAY GETS THE CALL TODAY.

Everyone else is waiting for the news to come to them.
