COMPASS'S NEW LENDER CLOSES BUYERS IN 10 DAYS.

80,000-plus agents just got plugged into one in-house lender. Here's what that costs everyone else.

“COMPASS AND RATE MERGED THEIR MORTGAGE ARMS INTO ONE LENDER, ORIGINPOINT, PROMISING COMPASS'S 80,000-PLUS AGENTS A CLOSE IN AS FEW AS 10 DAYS.

Rate's CEO says two of the brands joining this loop already ran $200 billion in purchase volume.

THE LOAN OFFICER ISN'T NEUTRAL ANYMORE.

When a brokerage owns the mortgage company, the loan officer sitting across from a buyer reports up through the same parent as a competing agent's whole referral network. Compass's CEO called the new venture a "powerhouse lending platform," and Rate's CEO says onboarding hundreds of originators is "just the beginning." None of that loop is open to an agent outside Compass. The buyer still gets a loan either way. The referral relationship that used to belong to the agent just became somebody else's asset.

DO THIS BEFORE YOUR NEXT BUYER:

1 Pick one lender and put the referral relationship in writing.

A verbal "I usually send people to Dave" isn't a partnership, it's a habit someone else can outbid.

2 Ask your go-to lender what they can match on speed.

A 10-day close promise is now the bar a buyer's other agent might casually mention.

3 Tell your buyer upfront who you work with and why.

The agents who lose this referral loop are the ones who never named a lender at all.

THE TAKEAWAY

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Call your lender this week and ask if you're the first referral they think of, or just one of the agents who sends business sometimes.
