THE FED JUST SIGNALLED ONE MORE HIKE.

Buyers waiting for rates to drop just got worse news,
not better.

"THE WAIT MIGHT GET LONGER, NOT SHORTER."

That's the sentence every buyer sitting on the fence needs to hear this week, before they decide to wait one more quarter.

WEDNESDAY'S MEETING WAS HAWKISH, AND THE COMMITTEE IS PROJECTING A HIKE, NOT A CUT.

Redfin's head of economics research called September's Fed meeting hawkish: the committee is formally projecting one more rate hike before year end, not the cut a lot of buyers are quietly banking on. Two Fed presidents are on the calendar to speak again this week, and the market will parse every word for how many hikes are actually coming. A buyer holding out for a lower rate right now is betting against the Fed's own stated plan.

THREE THINGS TO SAY TO A BUYER SITTING ON THE FENCE THIS WEEK:

- 1 Name the signal, not a guess.
"The Fed just projected another hike, not a cut. Waiting on a lower rate right now is a bet against their own words."
- 2 Move the conversation to payment, not rate.
Run the numbers at today's rate and at a rate a quarter point higher, side by side, before they decide to wait.
- 3 Set a decision date.
Ask what changes for them if rates are the same, or worse, in ninety days. If the answer is nothing, waiting has no plan behind it.

THE TAKEAWAY

A BUYER WAITING ON A RATE THE FED
JUST SAID ISN'T
COMING IS WAITING ON NOTHING.

Bring them the payment math this week, before the next Fed speech makes the decision for them.
