

KALE REALTY

DON'T PROMISE RATES ARE DROPPING.

---

Here's the answer that keeps the deal alive instead.

“

YOUR BUYER IS WAITING FOR A
NUMBER THAT ISN'T COMING.

Today's rate is 6.54%. Hope isn't a strategy, and neither is guessing.

THEY DIDN'T ASK FOR OPTIMISM. THEY ASKED FOR A PLAN.

When a buyer asks if rates will drop, they're really asking whether to act now or keep waiting. Answering with a guess, in either direction, hands them a reason to stall. Answering with their actual number at today's rate hands them something they can decide with.

THE SWAP FOR THE RATE-DROP QUESTION:

- 1 Don't say "rates might come down."
Nobody can promise that, and when they don't, the buyer stops trusting your read on everything else.
- 2 Don't say "just buy now regardless."
It sounds like a pitch, not advice, and the buyer hears the difference.
- 3 Say this instead.
"Today's rate is 6.54%. Let's run your actual payment at that number, so you're deciding on something real, not guessing about the future."
- 4 Offer to re-run the numbers if the rate moves.
It makes the buyer feel tracked instead of pressured.

THE TAKEAWAY

GIVE THEM THE REAL NUMBER, NOT A GUESS ABOUT
THE FUTURE.

Try the exact line on your next buyer who's waiting on rates.
