ONE AGENT FIRED HIS TRANSACTION COORDINATOR, HIS MARKETING TEAM, AND HIS WEBSITE PERSON.

He didn't replace them with people. He replaced them with one system he built.

03 / 05

HE DIDN'T STACK FIVE TOOLS. HE BUILT ONE SYSTEM.

Brenton Miebach, a $10M-plus producer at Southwest Florida Lifestyle Living with eXp Realty in Cape Coral, told D.J. Paris on Keeping It Real: "I've replaced a transaction coordinator, a marketing team, and a website person with an AI system that I've built." He built it in Google Drive, set up so any AI platform can read it and work from it. The same files run his transaction coordination, his marketing, and his website, instead of three separate hires doing three separate jobs.

BUILD YOUR OWN VERSION THIS WEEK:

1. Pick the role costing you the most hours.
   Miebach started with transaction coordination,
2. the task eating the most time for the least judgment it actually requires.
3. Put your templates in one shared folder.
   Listing descriptions, follow-up scripts, closing
4. checklists, all in a Google Drive folder, not scattered across your laptop and your phone.
5. Point one AI tool at that folder.
   Let it write from your own documents instead of a blank
6. prompt with no context behind it.
7. Keep the system portable.
   Miebach built his to work across AI platforms, not locked to
8. one app that could change its price or shut down tomorrow.

THE TAKEAWAY

OPEN A GOOGLE DRIVE FOLDER RIGHT NOW AND DROP IN YOUR LAST FIVE FOLLOW-UP EMAILS.

That's the start of the system Miebach built to replace three hires.
