REAL ESTATE COACH MARKI LEMONS-RYHAL SENT EIGHT EMAILS OVER NINE DAYS TO 13,000 CONTACTS AND MADE $128,635, WITH NO AD BUDGET BEHIND ANY OF IT.

The agents still paying for holiday ads are solving a problem email already solved.

03 / 05

MOST AGENTS EITHER GO QUIET OVER THE HOLIDAYS OR BUY AN AD TO STAY VISIBLE.

Neither is the move. Lemons-Ryhal built a six-touch calendar running from late October through January and opened it with a two-question survey asking her list what winter task was on their mind and what they wanted covered in January. Their answers decided her next three emails. About one percent of her list unsubscribed, roughly 130 people out of 13,000, which is the real cost of staying visible this way. Compare that to what the same reach costs in ad spend.

WHAT TO DO DIFFERENTLY THIS MONTH:

1 Build a six-email calendar now, not in December.

Two in November, two in December, one in January, and one more if you are starting late. Don't wait for the holiday card to be the whole plan.

2 Open with a two-question survey.

Ask what winter home task is on their mind and what they want covered in January. Let the answers write your next three emails.

3 Give something in every email, never just a greeting.

A winterizing checklist, a tax document list, a year-end maintenance guide. The list stays on the list because every email is useful on its own.

THE TAKEAWAY

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Open your CRM today. Pull your full sphere list and send the two-question survey before you write another holiday card.
