826 BROKERAGES JUST SIGNED A LETTER.

Most of them are not who you would guess.

OF THE 826 BROKERAGE LETTERS BACKING A NEW CHALLENGE TO MLS EXCLUSIVITY RULES, 493 OF THEM, 59 PERCENT, CAME FROM INDEPENDENT FIRMS, NOT THE FRANCHISE BRANDS WHOSE NAMES ARE ON THE ANNOUNCEMENT.

The names on the press release are not the ones that showed up.

THE BRAND ON YOUR SIGN DID NOT WRITE THIS LETTER. SOMEBODY SMALLER DID.

Open Real Estate launched with big franchise names attached to the founding announcement. But when it came time to actually put a signature on a letter of support, independents outnumbered them. That split tells you something: the firms with the most to lose from loosening MLS exclusivity are not necessarily the ones pushing hardest to loosen it. If your own brokerage has said nothing about where it stands on this, that silence is itself a position, and you are the one who has to ask what it is.

WHAT TO DO DIFFERENTLY THIS MONTH:

1 Ask your managing broker, in writing, where your firm stands.
Did you sign on, did you decline, or did nobody ask. Get the answer on record, not in a hallway conversation.

2 Read your own MLS's exclusivity and clear cooperation policy once.
Know the rule before the next headline about it is the first time you have seen it.

3 Bring the letter to your next office meeting yourself.
If nobody else raises it, you are the one who read it first.

THE TAKEAWAY

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO NOW.

Email your managing broker today. Ask one question: did we sign on, and if not, why not.
